THE STATE OF THE INTERNET NOW!

The Internet is a strange, huge beast. It is getting bigger, faster and more mobile each day. Ferocious social networks fight each other to be on top and gain more of our attention and personal information. An entire economy is generated from our browsing habits. This is the face of the Internet now.

THE INTERNET WORLDWIDE

The Internet is considered to be important that access is a legal right in countries like Finland, Spain and Estonia. Countries like Egypt and Turkmenistan on the contrary are Internet black-holes, as they are censoring it to a pervasive or substantial level. In some of quality of life, all networks are not created equal.

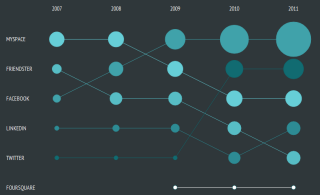

Because of ever cheaper devices, the ability to access the Internet via cellphone networks and increasing broadband reach, the actual number of people online will plateau for decades. But the net is still mature enough for the growth it undergoes to keep coming down soon.

FACT: ONLY 20% OF INDIVIDUALS IN THE DEVELOPING WORLD ARE ONLINE

THE RACE FOR INTERNET DOMINATION

Back in 2008 MySpace and Facebook were fighting to get neck to neck for the top spot in the global race to be the top social network. Facebook is now the clear winner, but smaller competitors like FourSquare are winning more users at a steady pace. Twitter-powered social networking like LinkedIn emerges as the fourth player.

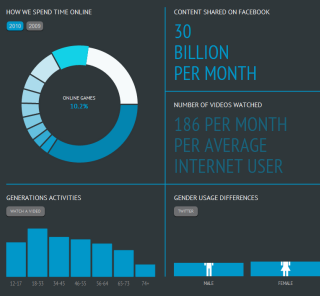

Outside the Social Network race, websites like ubiquitous Google are collecting or generating an enormous amount of data.

FACT: THERE ARE MORE SEARCHES FOR JUSTIN BIEBER THAN FOR JESUS.

HOW WE USE THE INTERNET

Social networking sites continues to gain momentum. They are so pervasive there is almost no escape from it; we spend a substantial amount of time on them.

FACT: 11% OF 50+ YO INTERNET USERS MAINTAIN A PERSONAL BLOG

MONEY AND THE INTERNET

Many social media sites are expected to launch public stock offerings this year including the professional-networking site LinkedIn and the discount travel company. The longstanding relations in social media indicate where financial markets perceive growth and value in the Internet ecosystem these days.

FACT: GOOGLE'S STOCK PRICES 6 TIMES BIGGER THAN THEIR INITIAL VALUE.
